Meet Ryan

Ryan Terndrup is a Senior Instructional Designer who loves creating learning experiences that actually make sense to real people doing real work. He combines instructional strategy with creativity and technology to build training that feels clear, practical, and easy to connect with—whether it's through eLearning, video, or simple job aids learners can use right away.

Ryan has spent his career supporting employees across both technical and non-technical roles, designing and facilitating training that helps people grow with confidence. He has hands-on experience in tools like Articulate Storyline and Rise, Adobe Creative Suite, and several LMS platforms, and he enjoys finding the right mix of media to bring content to life. With a background in IT and years spent supporting multiple learning environments, he brings a balance of technical know-how and learner-focused design.

Today, Ryan works as a Senior Instructional Designer at American Signature Inc., where he develops high-impact training content, leads curriculum initiatives, and mentors other designers. Before that, he spent a decade with Time Warner Cable / Charter, progressing to Senior Training Facilitator III while building and delivering training across the organization.

Finding Balance

Outside of work, Ryan enjoys a full and busy life with his wife, Jamie, and their son, Lucas. He's a golfer and hockey enthusiast, and he loves going out, staying active, and enjoying nights out with friends.

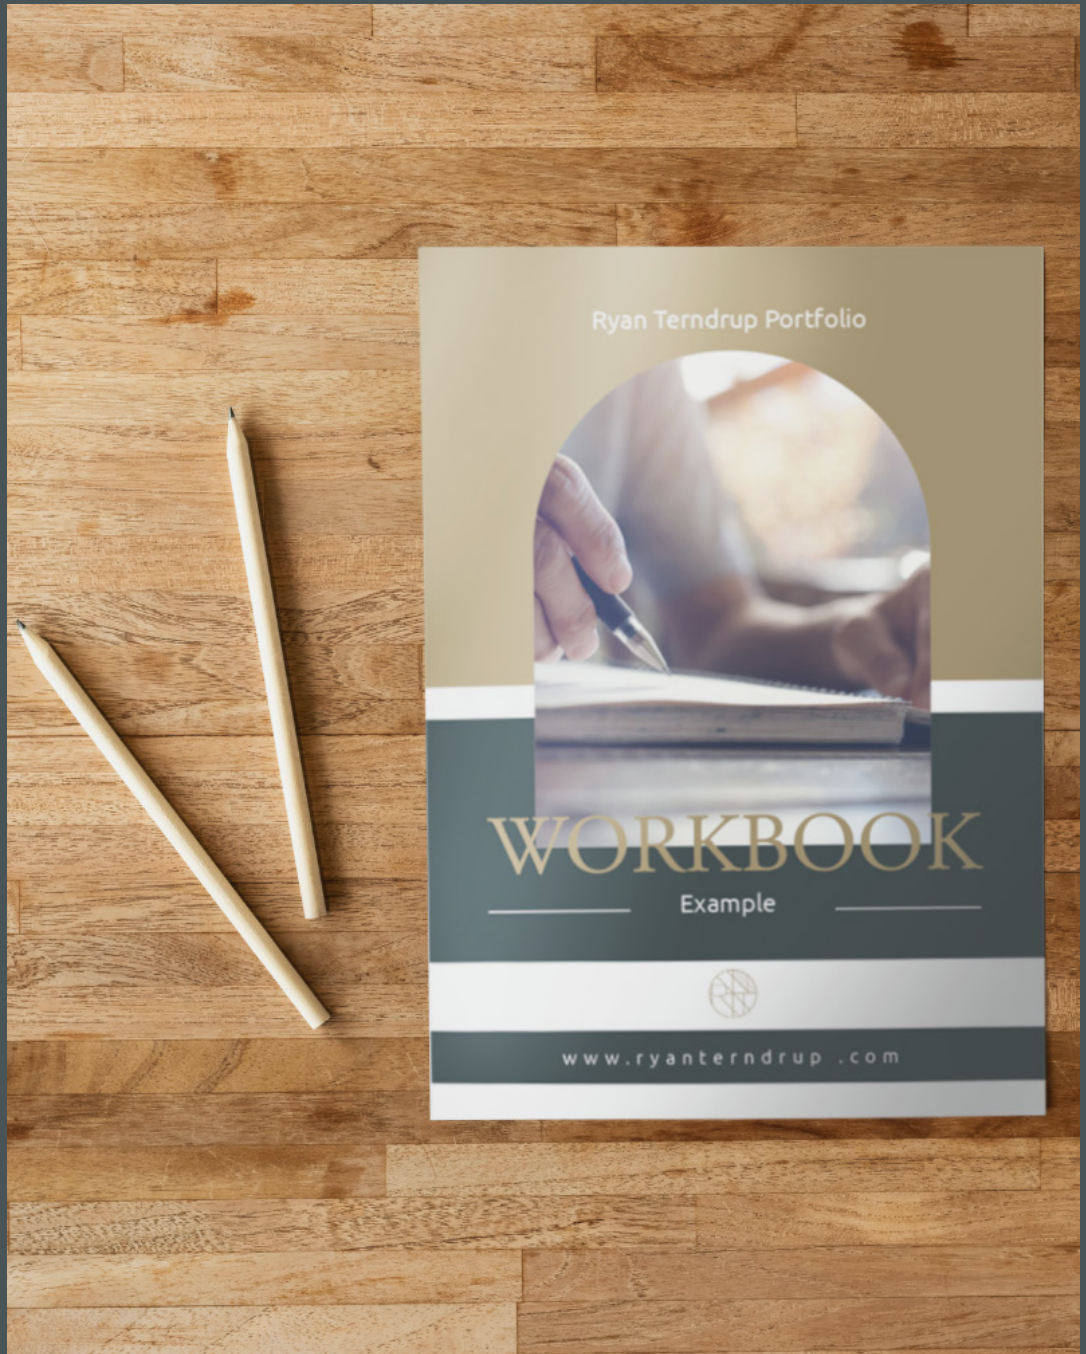

When he's not on the course or at the rink, you'll usually find him spending quality time with family. Whether that's relaxing at home, exploring Columbus, or hanging out with their two English Bulldogs. For Ryan, life is all about balance, good people, and making the most of life.
